

Abstract

5 A communication device is described herein that is capable of enabling a user to select whether they want to use voice communications, text communications or voice/text communications to communicate with a remote communication device used by a person or an automated phone service. Also described herein are methods for making and using the communication device.

10